

WALTER L. Dunham, one of the Reconstruction Finance corporation directors under fire by Senator Fulbright's investigating committee, explains his troubles this way:

"Somebody took me in. I think I am entirely lacking in political sagacity."

"I think our contacts with congress were bad. I think our contacts with the public were bad. I think our common understanding of our responsibility was never explored."

So says Dunham of the mess that Fulbright's probe has uncovered—government money being loaned to political friends, and to gamblers building Miami hotels. But Dunham is a Detroit banker, and a Republican, who was put on the RFC board to make sure that government lending did not become a party abuse.

Surely his explanations don't sound convincing even to Dunham himself. As a banker he knows what the real trouble is: The RFC has outlived the purpose for which it was created. It was born in panic times to salvage troubled banks, insurance companies, railroads and other vital private services.

But these are inflation days, when the dollar's difficulty is that it is too plentiful rather than scarce. About the only legitimate field left for the RFC in these times is the exploitation of natural resources, and experimentation in new by-product industries. Government aid has a certain field here, just as government does a good deal of special work for agriculture. But if this is all that remains of the original RFC program then the RFC itself should be abolished.

Government lending in days of easy dollars has written nothing but scandal, as the Fulbright committee is disclosing daily.

Puerto Rican Is Sentenced to Death

Washington, March 8 — (AP) — The little Puerto Rican Oscar Collazo has been sentenced to death in the electric chair following conviction for murder during an attempt to assassinate President Truman.

It took a federal court jury only an hour and 42 minutes yesterday to convict the 37-year-old Collazo on two first-degree murder counts. Each carries a mandatory sentence of death, although the formal sentencing was delayed.

Collazo's conviction in an attempt to storm the White House last Nov. 1 paid with his life on the spot.

Hope to Be Host to Band Festival Friday, April 13

If you don't have a horn you'll be out of style in Hope Friday, April 13. That's the date when Hope plays host to the District Four Band Festival. C. T. Cannon, local band director, made the announcement today after consultation with other towns and band directors of this district that Hope was chosen to be host city because of its excellent facilities and central location.

Some sixteen to twenty bands will participate in the festival, which means that an estimated 800 high school and junior high musicians with an equal number of parents and visitors will be in Hope that day. Each band will play a prepared 25-minute program in the High School auditorium and then move to the band building for a sightreading session, events being judged. However, while the auditorium playing is open to the public, the sightreading is not.

For the night program in Hammons Stadium, all bands will participate in a marching exhibition, lasting about two hours. Each band will be allotted six minutes for its part in the show. The climax of the night performance will be a massed band concert by all the bands combined.

Arrangements for handling the festival were discussed by the Band Mothers club at its regular meeting last Monday night. In addition, Mr. Holt, high school principal, has placed the facilities of the high school at the disposal of the festival committee for that date.

Water Managers to Meet Here

A district water and sewer managers conference will be held in Hope March 22. The session will start with a dinner at Hotel Barlow and end with a business session in the council room at Hope City Hall. This is a monthly meeting with towns in the district alternating as hosts.

Fulbright Calls on Justice Dept. to Enter Probe

Washington, March 8 — (AP) — Senators investigating charges of influence on RFC lending asked the justice department today to search its record of hearings for evidence of perjury, tax evasion or other violations of law.

Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark) announced his senate banking subcommittee had voted unanimously to ask for the inquiry. It has been supplying the justice department a daily copy of witnesses' sworn testimony.

The decision came after a private huddle of the senators.

Earlier, they had held a short closed door cross-examination of RFC Director Walter L. Dunham and had quoted him as saying a fellow board member urged him to resign and "become the fall guy" in the subcommittee's investigation.

Fulbright said Dunham named Director C. Edward Rowe as the man who made the proposal.

Another subcommittee member, Senator Capewell (D-Ind), said Dunham used the words "become the fall guy" in describing the incident. He said Dunham filed documents with the subcommittee to back his story. Fulbright said Dunham made a trip to Florida recently and, before leaving, dictated Continued on Page Two

Allies Making Short Gains in Korea Push

Tokyo, March 1 — (AP) — Allied troops stabbed ahead one or two miles today against spotty resistance in the second day of their 70-mile wide drive in Korea.

Field dispatches said the Red resistance was "more of a rear-guard nature, indicating the Communists were withdrawing their main body of troops in front of the advancing Allies."

A U. S. Eighth Army briefing officer said 11,038 Chinese and North Korean Reds were killed or wounded Wednesday on the opening day of the assault — one of the biggest Allied attacks of the war.

The weather was springlike, sunny but nippy enough to require an overcoat.

While ground troops crunched ahead, 14 U. S. F-86 sabre jets intercepted 17 MiG-type fighters over northwest Korea. The Russian-built jets fled. Neither side sustained damage.

"We didn't have time to get in any good shots at them," said Lt. Col. Glenn T. Eagleston, flight leader. "As soon as they saw us coming they turned tail and ran."

The U. S. 25th Division fanned out an additional mile Thursday from the three-mile-deep bridgehead it carved Wednesday on the north bank of the Han River east of Seoul. The 25th made three assaults crossings over bridges built under Red mortar fire. Its advance Thursday was against little or no resistance.

On the right of the 25th, the U. S. 24th Division drove ahead almost two miles against scattered resistance.

And farther along the battleline, from west to east:

U. S. First Cavalry Division troops advanced almost two miles unopposed Northeast of Chipyong toward Hongcheon.

British forces east of Yongdu reported forcing 200 Reds moving north.

No action was reported in sketchy information from the British sector.

Harris, Tackett Placed in Same District

Little Rock, March 8 — (AP) — Arkansas' seven U. S. representatives have given their okay on the state legislature's congressional redistricting-reduction plan.

All the bill needs to become law is Governor McMath's signature.

The reshuffle compresses seven districts into six and places two congressmen — Oren Harris of the present seventh district and Boyd Tackett of the present fourth district — into the same district, the new fourth.

They took it in stride.

Harris told a reporter in Washington that he had urged that the rearrangement be adopted by the legislature, even though he was "fully aware of the probabilities. But in the interest of the entire state and the people I took the action I did."

Tackett said he was satisfied "even though I am the only one hurt."

He added that he retains seven of his eleven counties in the new district while Harris kept ten of his eleven. But he called the new district a logical one.

The five other congressmen were a bit more gleeful in their comments. "Fine plan," said E. C. Gathings who still is in the first district.

Wilbur Mills, who is and still will be in the second district, and Brooks Hays, still in the fifth (Little Rock) district, said they were pleased.

"A mighty, mighty good bill," commented W. F. Norrell of the new and old sixth district.

Jim Trimble remains in the third district.

There were expressions of regret over the loss of certain counties and that two of the seven wound up in the same district. But, as Norrell said, "such a development was inevitable."

The redistricting was made necessary when a population loss Continued on Page Two

It Seems Strange But the Supreme Court Justices Are Worried About Bootleggers

By ARTHUR EDSON (For Hal Boyle)

Washington, March 8 — (AP) — It seems a strange problem to put before supreme court justices, cloistered as they are in their incomparable marble building with its magnificent law library.

But it's there. The justices are worried about bootleggers and the standing they have in their communities.

Specifically, the court must find an answer to this question: Is a man who peddles booze illegally guilty of a crime involving moral turpitude?

In their scholarly researches the justices have considered the esteem, or lack of same, in which bootleggers are held in Kentucky, home state of chief justice Vinson. And they've even heard a reference to that amateur chemist of the prohibition era who mastered the art of making bathtub gin.

Although the justices treated some of the arguments lightly, there's no doubt that the question is a serious one for Sam De George, half owner and chef of a restaurant in Harvey, Ill.

If bootlegging is a crime involving moral turpitude, he will be deported to his native Palermo, Italy, when he came 20 years ago.

If bootlegging doesn't involve moral turpitude, he will be allowed to continue to serve spaghetti to the good citizens of Harvey.

De George's case got to the supreme court as an aftermath of two convictions of conspiracy to isolate the internal revenue code.

Which is a fancy way of saying that he and some pals were making liquor and neglecting to pay the tax.

He served a year and a day in the penitentiary the first two, two years the second.

The immigration law says any alien who, more than once, is sentenced to terms of a year or more in prison is subject to deportation. Provided — and this is what the argument is all about — the sentence is for "any crime involving moral turpitude."

Okay. What's moral turpitude? That's the rub congress passed the law, but never did define what moral turpitude meant.

John F. Davis of the solicitor general's office maintained in his argument before the court that not paying taxes on whiskey is fraud and that fraud involves moral turpitude.

Thomas F. Dolan, arguing for De George, said merely making whiskey is no crime. Distilleries do it every day. And failing to pay taxes, Dolan said, is not an "act of baseness, villainy or depravity," as some dictionaries define moral turpitude.

Davis admitted that in some areas moonshining isn't regarded as the worst of all possible crimes. "I believe that is true of Kentucky," he said.

"Just Kentucky?" asked Vinson. Justice Frankfurter, who asks more questions than any other justice, remarked that for some reason moonshining was considered romantic, and he observed:

"Gambling and alcohol have always stood apart in the law — and one other profession."

Dolan said one reason bootlegging isn't more frowned upon is that during prohibition says many a respectable citizen made his own brew.

Justice Jackson asked (hopelessly, it seemed): "Hasn't the statute of limitations run out on that?"

Well, the talk went on as to what congress meant, and what the dictionaries said, and what society thought until Frankfurter burst out with:

"I'm inclined to think that congress has put upon us an impossible task."

The justices will have to solve it, though.

That's what supreme courts are for.

Legislature Adjourns; House Argues But Fails to Act on Sales Tax Hike

All Business Transacted, Senate Quits

Little Rock, March 8 — (AP) — The Arkansas senate adjourned sine die at noon today.

Adjournment came as the senate was arguing over a bill (HB201) to give gasoline distributors more leeway in accounting shrinkage on their products.

The senate previously had wound up legislative action on all major lawmaking matters. Those included approval of a $30,000,000 budget a year for the public schools; increase the state sales tax from two to three per cent, a congressional redistricting plan and raising the state tax on cigarettes and liquor.

In a last minute effort to clean up all pending business the senate passed four bills previously approved in the house and defeated two.

The bills adopted now go to the governor.

Wrangling of last night's busy and drawn-out session hung over the senate during the short morning session.

At adjournment the senate was Continued on Page Two

Midwest Dairy Co. Takes Over Olie's Plant

Official announcement of the acquisition of Olie's Dairy, at Hope, by Midwest Dairy Products corporation, was made today by T. J. Beck, Midwest vice-president.

Mr. Beck disclosed that Olie's Dairy will continue as a local operation, working in close harmony with Midwest's plant at Texarkana. He also indicated that in addition to Midwest's complete line of dairy by-products, which includes oolong-margarine, cottage cheese, half-and-half, chocolate drink, orange-ade, grapeade and buttermilk, the well-known Fortune's ice cream would be sold through selected dealer outlets throughout the entire Hope area, which includes Prescott, Gordon and other neighboring localities.

Olie's dairy is already operating under the name of Midwest Dairy Products corporation. All of its products are now guaranteed by the Midwest "Standards of Quality Control." The vast Midwest laboratory testing facilities under the direction of Dr. N. A. Perry, authority on dairy science, are already being utilized by the newly-acquired plant to assure strictest quality, production, and sanitation control.

We Have Built Buildings, Now Let Us Build Bodies, Theme of VFW Auxiliary Cancer Drive

"We have built buildings, now let us build bodies." That was the theme of the VFW Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, started their 1949, 1950 Cancer campaign.

Shortly after giving $10,000 towards the reconstruction of Jackson Memorial Laboratory destroyed by fire in 1947, a Memorial Trust fund of $10,000 was set up in memory of Grace H. Davis, National Sec-Treas. of the Aus. of the V. F. W. for 25 years.

This trust fund, was given to Children's Mercy hospital in Kansas City, Mo. This hospital was founded in 1897 by two sisters, Dr. Alice Graham and Dr. Catherine B. Richardson, "for the use of sick and crippled children, to be forever non-sectarian, non-local, and for those who cannot pay."

To this day, this creed has not been broken, although at times it has been difficult to maintain.

From a three bed affair, started by the sisters, Mercy hospital has today 145 beds and can provide 100 in an emergency. In 1948 the hospital treated a total of 14,424 children and had 2,344 bed patients. Supported entirely by contributions, its funds are supplemented by gifts from the community and by interest from bequests, and by gifts from hundreds of Mercy clubs all over the nation. About 60 doctors take turns from their private practice to give free service to the children at Mercy.

Big-4 to Take Up Treaty for Austria

Paris, March 8 — (AP) — Deputies of the Big Four foreign ministers face still another discussion today and how to negotiate an independent treaty for Austria as a step toward easing East-West tension.

The deputies meet for the fourth time in their current series of talks designed to draw up a list of points for their ministers to discuss at the proposed Big Four meeting. Unless they agree on a list and how to phrase it, the ministers won't get together at all.

Britain, France and the United States are eager to get the Austrian treaty over and done with. So is Austrian Foreign Minister Karl Gruber, who is here to watch from the sidelines.

But this time the Russians left it off their proposed list of topics. They did bring it up yesterday, but they recalled an old statement: Russia's insistence—and the Western powers' denial—that to talk about Austria they also would have to talk about the little territory of Trieste, on the Adriatic sea.

The Russians say the Western Powers have violated their treaty with Italy by turning Trieste into a military base. How could the Russians know, demanded Russia's deputy Andrei Gromyko, that Austria wouldn't turn into a second Trieste?

Last-Minute Effort Ruled Out of Order

Little Rock, March 8 — (AP) — The Arkansas house adjourned at 11 p. m. today without acting upon proposed sales tax increase.

A last-minute effort to bring up on the floor was ruled out of order.

Earlier, the house, working after the senate adjourned at noon, adopted the public school appropriation bill, the senate amendment.

At 12:15 p. m. Rep. Pat Robinson of Lafayette county moved that the house adjourn sine die. There was a second, it couldn't be heard at the press table.

Then Rep. Paul Van Dalsen of Perry county moved that the house remain in session until it had disposed of amendments to appropriation bills still pending.

A motion by Rep. Frank Smith of Craighead county that the house adjourn at 11:50 p. m. tonight, was voted down, 33 for and 60 against.

A roll call then was ordered on Van Dalsen's adjournment proposal.

The vote wasn't announced, but that the motion apparently was carried. The voting machine showed 45 to 40 in favor of the motion.

Still pending were the public school appropriation bill and senate amendments.

It appeared that the proposal Continued on Page Two

Lonely Hearts Slayers to Die for Crime

Ossining, N. Y., March 8 —(AP)—Two lustful lovers were reported calmly resigned to die in the electric chair tonight as the final payoff in their murder-for-profit partnership.

But lawyers continued last-minute efforts to save the condemned "lonely hearts" slayers — 200-pound Mrs. Martha Beck and Raymond Fernandez, the balding roommate.

Mrs. Beck, 31, and Fernandez, 36, have been in the death house at Sing Sing prison since 1949, but they never have met while in prison.

After another unsuccessful appeal in New York state courts their lawyers planned to make a final plea to a federal court today — either in New York City or the Supreme court in Washington.

Another appeal to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to commute the death sentences also was likely.

The pair was sentenced for the bludgeon-strangulation murder of a 66-year-old Albany, N. Y., widow, Mrs. Janet Fay.

Mrs. Fay was slain in Valley Stream N. Y., Jan. 4, 1949, as she pleaded for Fernandez' love. He had met the widow through a lonely hearts club, won her with his honeyed words and got hold of her money.

Other lonely hearts murders were chalked up against Fernandez and Mrs. Beck — who posed as brother and sister as they traveled from state to state — but they were tried only for the murder of Mrs. Fay.

They are scheduled to die in the first quadruple electrocution at Sing Sing in almost four years. John J. King, 22, and Richard J. Power, 22, are to be executed for the murder of William Hupe in a robbery in New York City March 15, 1950.

Truman Not Interested in Controversies

Key West, Fla., March 8 —(AP)—President Truman gave every indication today that he doesn't intend to get involved in a controversial discussion of problems besetting his administration.

He cancelled his usual Thursday news conference to let events take their course in Washington.

John R. Steelman, assistant to the President, joined the presidential party at this naval submarine base, to bring the President with organized labor on the overall mobilization program. Steelman flew in yesterday.

W. Averell Harriman, former secretary of commerce and one-time ambassador to Moscow, is due in today for a report on international developments. Harriman is special assistant for foreign affairs.

Harriman is to be accompanied by Brig. General Wallace H. Graham, physician to the President, who recommended this Florida vacation for the President in view of the pressure under which Mr. Truman has worked since the North Korean Communists invaded South Korea last June.

Another visitor soon to join the White House party is Donald S. Dawson, Mr. Truman's administrative assistant on appointments.

Dawson, under fire by a senate subcommittee in investigating alleged influence on the reconstruction finance corporation in the making of loans, has already drawn expressions of support from the President at a news conference in Washington.

Injuries Are Fatal to U. S. Senator

Washington, March 8 — (AP)—Senator Virgil Chapman, 55-year-old veteran member of congress from Kentucky, was injured fatally early today in a collision of his automobile and a trailer-truck. He was a Democrat.

Chapman died at Bethesda naval hospital about seven hours after the accident, which occurred at 3:20 a. m. (EST) on Connecticut. He was in the northwest section of the city.

Adm. M. D. Willcuts commanding officer of the hospital, said Chapman suffered serious lung and other internal injuries.

Although Chapman was serving his first term as a senator, he had been a member of the house for 22 years before he moved up to the senate in 1948. He succeeded Vice President Barkley when Barkley was elected vice president.

His death cuts the Democratic majority in the senate to bnc.

Comissioner of Labor Approved

Little Rock, March 8 —(AP)—The Arkansas senate has approved Governor McMath's reappointment of C. K. Call of Little Rock as state labor commissioner.

Among appointments also approved yesterday was that of Russell Owen of Marked Tree to the board of trustees of Arkansas State college at Jonesboro. Owen was named after the senate rejected a previous McMath nomination for membership in the board.

Indians Give White Man a Lesson

Window Ro AkeR.Iz., March 8 — (AP)—The Navajo Indians gave their white brothers an election lesson this week.

Voting for the first time in tribal elections under the white men's system, more than 75 per cent of the eligible voters cast ballots at 74 polling places scattered around the vast Navajo reservation.

White men don't do nearly as well in their elections.
Some travelled as far as 60 miles by wagon or horseback over rugged roads to vote. They returned Sam Ikeah, stocky successor to the late Chee Dodge, as tribal chairman in a three-cornered contest.

The unofficial returns completed last night gave Ahkeah 5,900 votes to 4,840 for Scott Preston and 3,202 for James Beccent.

Ahkeah—the word means "the boy"—carried his running mate John Claw in as vice-chairman. Also elected were five tribal judges and 74 members of the tribal council.

The campaign was similar to election campaigns everywhere, except that it was more wearing on the candidates travelling over the undeveloped reservation area. Also there was no mudslinging.

When his election was assured last night, Ahkeah heaved a sigh of relief and went to bed.

Since 1938, the Navajos had voted under a system where each candidate was represented by a colored card. The cards were piled in the polling booths and the voters picked the color representing their choice. It was not very secret.

In the voting last Monday and Tuesday, formal ballots were used for the first time.
They differed from the white man's ballot in that they bore the pictures of the candidates. Indians who could not read or write were thus able to mark their x under the picture of their choice.

To help put the new system into effect, special election judges—all Indians—were first instructed how to use the new ballots. These judges stayed in the polling places to show the Indians how to use the ballot before going into the booths to vote.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler
Copyright, 1950
By King Features Syndicate.

The decision of the veteran professional paralyzes on the body of American labor to get out of the so-called defense administration is carelessly taken to mean that the people who work for wages now have nobody to speak for them.
That is not true. The government represents all of us. The Messrs.
Green, Murray, Lewis and all their predatory, dictatorial kind never have had the slightest authority from the working people of the United States. They have been called "labor leaders" but not one of them ever deserved this title.
In the press, this was an error of carelessness and convenience in the long ago. There is now no excuse for the misrepresentation in the light of our modern knowledge of the union movement. There are no leaders of labor in the United States. These men are bosses, not leaders. Not one of them has a valid mandate from any group of workers.

Green is elected by a gang of fellow racketeers along from the workers. He is invariably found on the side of the professional goon in any conflict with a rank-andfiler. The same can be said of Murray, followed by a reminder that he never has confessed his disgraceful collaboration with notorious Communists, such as Lee Prosser, who was the chief counsel of the CIO. Murray has indicated, but has not openly declared, that he regrets his association with the President who touched off the war that now calls for the mobilization of national resources and the construction of underground warrens to protect a few of us from the atom bomb. Mr.
Truman's own bill in back of the White House was built even before the wreckers took over that majestic heap.

It would be a boon to labor if the current rule of the boss unions should become permanent and Mr. Truman should close the door on the whole gang for all time. The official conduct of these audacious predators in World War II was so bad that congress should not have faltered at the 38th parallel drawn by Taft and Hartley but should have repealed the Wagner act absolutely and liberated some 12 million subjects from bondage.
Those old bums had taken a pretensions public vow to prevent strikes in war industries. That promise was violated to the extent of about 5,000 strikes a year.

Thieving, organized looting, whistle-blowing and overtime pay for a figure that can be reckoned only in billions of dollars from exerting themselves to hold down costs and stand off inflation, would have been a real service to labor if they constantly demanded high wages in the war "projects" and finally ran these wages up so high that even Roosevelt irresponsible man as he was, had to resort to the old-time union checkoff, under the euphemism of "withholding," to grab some of it back.
It would be absurd to deny that this wild looting endured the union bosses to the ignorant majority of their subjects.

In the present situation, Truman is revealing again that strange trait of spunky defiance so seldom exercised in the public interest and so often in the interest of recitals in his personal circle. In this rare instance, he is ignoring the rages of the union racket in a manner which amounts to a public repudiation of the whole evil of unionism by a President who invoked it to get elected. Roosevelt inflated Dan Tobin's ego until that pompous old fellow became unbearable even to his own paid apoplectic. He permitted Murray Hillman, Dubinsky and Reuther to strut importantly as second-string statesmen. The only two whom he really didn't have in hand were Lewis, who had pegged him as a slanderer, and Hutcheson, who carried a lifelong Republican campaign badge, nevertheless, in return for the same deal the others got, Truman apparently has contempt for them. He well could have.

It is reasonable, in view of the public stupidity concerning the conditions and powers of unions, to inquire who would represent "labor" if the unions were taken at their word in withdrawing and were not invited back. The people of the United States have an honest, if inexcusable, superstition that unions are necessary to prevent the government and the employing corporations from taking unfair advantage of toilers. That error has been hollered up for many years by experts, including even some clergy who should know better and, in some cases, undoubtedly so. There was a time when unions were voluntary associations of genuine workers and, in

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, March 8 — (AP) — Tommy Blackburn is bringing his University of Dayton basketball team into the Garden for the national invitation tournament Saturday and you can really say he's one guy who got there the hard way. In 1927 Tommy, who had been a good high school athlete, was working with a steel crew building a bridge over the Ohio river at Kenova, W. Va. . . Looking down he saw a high school coach drilling his team. "Every time the coach tooted his whistle, the kids would hop to work and Blackburn decided that's for me. The next fall he went to visit a friend at Wilmington, O., and Coach Shifty Bolen invited him to enroll at Wilmington college. Tommy went through in three years, starred in three sports and spent the next 12 years coaching top-flight high school teams in Ohio. . . After a hit in the navy physical education program, he got a job as (of all things) a golf pro and it was in quest of a golf job that he came to Dayton, encountered Athletic Director Harry Baugh and was hired as basketball coach. . . Baugh had played against him in college and decided: "He gave me so much trouble on the other side I decided he would be a good man to have on my side." . . Tommy's career ought to produce some musical about crossing bridges, but we dunno.

Gorgeous Jim
Jim Jennings, who started out as manager of the Washington State college wrestling team, then won himself a place as the regular 175-pound grappler, can claim a record nobody else wants. In one match Jim decided his move was to get the other guy quickly.
He rushed across the mat, dived at the other guy's legs and smacked his chin against a hard, unyielding knee. . . Jennings was knocked colder than a deep freeze and his opponent just had to flip him over and pin his shoulders down. . . So Jim probably is the only collegiate wrestler whose record says: "Lost by knockout."

Williams Is Best on Free Throw Line

Fayetteville, Ark., March 8 — Bob Williams, Arkansas's brilliant set shooting senior appears to have safely tucked the annual Razorback free throw trophy under his arm for the 1950-51 season.
The fair-haired 6-0 three-year letterman has missed only three charity tosses out of the 30 he has attempted this year for a phenomenal .900 percentage. He missed one throw each in games with Oklahoma A & M, Baylor and Texas Christian. His highest mark of the season was a .952 on 20 good throws out of his first 21. Included in that stretch was a streak of 16 straight.

Runners-up to Williams thus far are three teammates with marks that would win the trophy three out of four years — All-conference guard D. L. Miller, Billy "Toar" Hester and Jack Hess. Miller has a perfect 75 percent mark while Hester and Hess are in a near dead-heat. Hester has a .099 percentage to Hess' .096.
Last year's trophy went to Norman Price, a senior this year, with a .099 recording — one of the lowest in recent years. To be eligible for the trophy a player must earn a letter for the season.
Hester, a seven-foot sophomore, was expected to grab honors for the highest field goal percentage.
He has attempted 135 shots from the field and made good on 62 of them for a superb 46 percent.
Runner-up in this column is also Miller with a .413 percentage.

Miller's 201 points for the final tabulation (a knee injury cut his season prematurely) is threatened only by Hester. The giant center must make 19 points against Rice this Thursday to tie. He bucketed 18 points against the Owls in just 12 minutes of play in their last outing.
Either the goldenrod or the pompoin is considered the flower for October and the opal or the tournament the birthstone.

Hope Girls in 62-45 Win Over Okolona Five

The Hope Senior Girls basketball had a fairly easy time downing Okolona 62 to 45 last night in their opening game in District 7-W tournament play at Emmet.
With the score 18 to 15 at the half Hope's Betty Mitchell, who scored only three points the entire first half, started hitting to rang up 34 points and lead the team to victory.
In other games: Bodeaw 69, Gurdon 47.
Bradley 58, Prescott 32.
Withrop 39, Lewisville 38.
Gillham 39, Guernsey 48.
Foreman 58, Garland 49.

Games scheduled today include:

Negro Bound Over on Slaying Charge

Blytheville, March 8 —(AP)—Arthur Nox Gray, 23-year-old Negro waived preliminary hearing today on a charge of first degree murder in the robbery slaying of a white taxi driver.

Officers, uncertain about public feeling over the killing, made no advance announcement of the Negro's arraignment in municipal court. He appeared before a virtually empty courtroom.

Gray was arrested Monday when blood-stained clothing and the social security card of the slain driver, Homer Albert Tucker, 61, were found at the Gray home in the nearby Hickman Bend community.

Sheriff William Berryman said Gray admitted helping rob Tucker after he was killed on a roadside near here last Saturday night but

DOROTHY DIX Should She Take Job?

Dear Miss Dix: Before we married I had a fine position in an office and my old employer is very anxious to have me back at a good salary. We've only been married two years and both of us are in our 20s. I should like very much to go back to my old job because I like the work and we need the money, but I hesitate to do so because of the effect it might have on our marriage. Many people tell me that when the wife works it breaks down the morale of the husband, and that nothing braces up a man to do his best like feeling that his wife is dependent upon him. What is your advice in the matter?

SARAH
Answer: No question is more complex than this. None to which it is more impossible to give a direct answer, because in every case whether or not the wife should follow some gainful occupation depends on the individual circumstances.

I do not think that any woman who has children should work outside of the home unless it is a case of dire necessity. Very often it is, because the earnings of the husband are not enough to give the children food and environment they need, but with the mother's salary added they can be given advantages that more than compensate for the loss of her personal services.

Don't Hurt His Pride
Whether the wife should work outside the home depends upon the husband's attitude toward it. If he objects strongly and if it hurts his pride for her to do so, she should respect his feelings in the matter unless it is a case of actual starvation. If she humiliates him by taking a job, it will wreck him because it will break down his belief in his ability to succeed. The clinging vine holds up many tottering oaks that would fall but for the brace it gives it.

The idea that it is any reflection on a man for his wife to work outside of the home after they are married is so antiquated that it seems to have come out of the hair-trunk in the attic. A man expects his wife rightly to help him. If she can do it better by earning money than by cooking and washing and scrubbing, why should she not do so? And in many cases the wife working for a few years after marriage enables the husband to get on his feet and for them to have the home and children they crave.

Dear Miss Dix: Do you really believe there is such a thing as love, except parental love? It is sex that makes the fascination between men and women; otherwise one woman would be as pleasing to a man as another. Most men and women marry through fascination, and the glowing soon wears off if there is not congeniality. Congeniality is what holds most couples together. But is there such a thing as love? DOUBTING THOMAS

Answer: Isn't love made up of sex attraction and congeniality and perhaps a third ingredient that is appreciation or gratitude, call it what you will? It is something that binds us to people whose loyalty we have tested, whose sacrifices have been laid gladly at our feet, at the fires of whose affection we have warmed ourselves.

What we know as fascination is purely sex attraction. It is nothing but sheer animalism. Love has sex attraction in it because we cannot love those who are physically repugnant to us. But love has congeniality in it also and that is why it lasts. It is the mixing to two minds with similar thoughts and desires and impulses. Fascination passes because there is nothing in it but passion, and that perishes of satiety.

That there is such a thing as love is proved by the thousands of old couples you see whose romance is long dead, who have no physical charms with which to attract each other, but who still love each other far more dearly than they did when they were young. Don't doubt love. It is the truest thing in the world.

Dear Dorothy Dix, I have a son who is married and has two children. He and his wife hate each other and fight like cat and dog. I have always taken the wife's part in order to try to keep them together, but now my son has left her and refuses to go back, no matter what I say. What shall I do?

Answer: There is nothing you can do but let them alone. Nothing is gained by trying to force a discordant husband and wife to live together. Better a peaceful home for the children with one parent than two who make it a place of strife. (Released by The Hall Syndicate, Inc.)

Columbia in 22nd Straight Cage Win

New York, March 8 —(AP)—He's just a pinch hitter but youngster Lou Rossini couldn't have done better.

When his Columbia Lions defeated Princeton last night, 73-68, they finished their basketball schedule of 22 games without a defeat. Add nine games from last season and that makes 31 straight games the New Yorkers have won.

Columbia is the only all-winning major five in the country. It's also the first time since the old war years that any major team has raced undefeated through its schedule. Army is the last club to win them all, 15-0, in 1945.

The 29-year-old Rossini took over as coach at the start after Coach Gordon Ridings took sick. Rossini graduated from Columbia in 1946.

As usual, John Azary led the averaging rout of Princeton last night. The Tigers are the last team to beat Columbia in 1946 the middle of last season.

Azary, primarily a playmaker and defensive ace this year, scored 17 points to pull him two over the 1,000-point career mark. After building up a 65-30 second-half lead the Lions throttled down.

Columbia had already clinched the Ivy league title and an NCAA tournament bid before last night's game.

The Lions didn't have much trouble over the year but there's plenty coming up March 20 in the post season classic that will decide the national champion. Columbia is matched against Illinois, the Big Ten champion and an eastern NCAA favorite with Kentucky and St. John's (the Brooklyn five hasn't been invited to the NCAA yet but is a 99 percent clinch).

In last night's other major test, the Oklahoma Aggies defeated Houston, 57-39, to win the Missouri Valley title and a western NCAA spot.

Both Parties Try to Solve Troop Issue

Washington, March 8 —(AP)—Leading Democrat and Republican senators tried today to ease the tension arising in two key committees over the troop-for-Europe issue.

Both sides fear the narrow margin by which the foreign relations and armed services committees yesterday approved the principle of sending ground forces abroad might result in irreparable harm to the job of building up Western Europe's defense forces.

A major point now at issue is: Who will determine how many troops this country is to contribute?

Whether a compromise satisfactory to most of the 26 members could be worked out still was an open question as the committees, meeting jointly under the chairmanship of Senator Connally (D Tex.), went into a new huddle. There were many divergent views.

Connally said he hoped the committee would complete its work today, but he doubted it would.

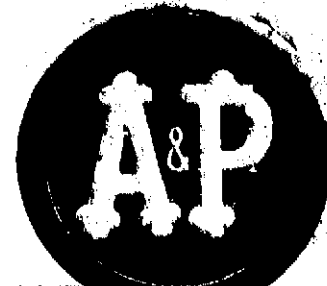

The approval in principle of the decision to send U. S. ground troops to Europe under the North Atlantic treaty carried 13 to 11 yesterday after two earlier votes ended in ties.

The administration has announced plans to send four more divisions, bringing to six the number of U. S. units available there for the North Atlantic defense command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

There is a strong sentiment on the part of the Republicans that congress must have a voice in any future decisions. At least two Democratic committee members indicated they share this feeling.

They argue that a resolution approved by both houses is necessary, stake out this executive-congressional collaboration and that a resolution requiring senate approval only is not satisfactory.

U. S. Action Admits Time Not Ripe When Peace Can Be Had by Moral Persuasion Alone

By DWIGHT MACKENZIE
Foreign Affairs Analyst

The American sponsored project for the creation of a United Nations army to combat aggression is an implicit admission that the time has not yet arrived when peace can be maintained by moral persuasion alone. That will come as a bitter blow to the exponents of peace who have dreamed that the U. N. would be the immediate forerunner of "one world" in which mankind could live in harmony. But, in the six years since the formation of the globe met in San Francisco to sign what was in effect a pledge to practice peace, events have made it clear that the ideal of "one world" was in fact just a dream of the distant future. It lacked the substance to make it come true quickly.

There have been exploding about the world like a string of firecrackers. Every time you turn, a new one is in the air. Thus one is driven to the conclusion that there will be no abandonment of wars until human nature has been changed. One of those who believe human nature can be changed is going to take some the militarily great powers. That would be an absurdity. Rather it will be intended for use to prevent, or to halt, war between lesser nations.

As a specific example we have the fierce and at times bloody dispute between the sister nations of India and Pakistan over possession of the princely state of Kashmir. This quarrel could lead to a war which might easily spread and involve other countries.

Britain and the United States have proposed that the United Nations send a military force to occupy Kashmir if they figure that with such an occupation the dispute could be settled outside a battlefield.

So I believe that exponents of peace should take encouragement, rather than discouragement, from this idea of creating an international army. The mere fact that the nations of the world are considering such a project shows that we are on the right road.

Great changes can't be expected speedily. It's a long time since the "sermon on the mount," but with all our faults we are closer to its teachings than was the world of that day.

Special Men in Government Don't Last

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, March 8 — (AP) — It's an old Washington cry — "I wonder how long he'll last" — when a new man comes in to take over a big government job.

There's nothing cynical about that. It's just a natural reaction after the Washington sky like Roman candles, only to end in a puff or a puff.

Some come here with political ambition to use the big job as a stepping stone to even bigger things. Others, at real sacrifice to themselves, come here out of a sense of public duty and want out when their job is done.

Some will survive long enough to finish their assignment; others, for one reason or another, get out or are forced out. The reasons for getting out are many.

Personally, performance stepped-on toes, pressure from special groups and the inevitable conflicts that spring up when many men, in many big jobs, have different notions on how things should be done.

One of the most memorable recent casualties was Louis Johnson, an attorney brought in as secretary of defense. He preached economy, which made a hit with congress, but at the same time told the world how tough we were. His scalp went up on the tent pole after our early disasters in Korea, when we saw how weak we were.

The great casualty list appeared in the days of President Franklin Roosevelt, particularly after we got into World War II and the war agencies sprang up. What happened in OPA in those days is a good example:

I had four boxes in four years: Leon Henderson, Prentiss Brown, Chester Bowles, and Paul Porter. Henderson, the first casualty, had the unhappy job of getting congress and the people used to OPA. Now, once again, although we're not at war, new defense agencies have been created and the biggest of them are headed mostly by men brought in from outside: Charles E. Wilson, Eric Johnston, Michael V. Disalle.

Although only a few months old, these defense agencies already have had one big casualty. That was Alan Valentine, educator and businessman, who was brought in to head ESA — the economic stabilization agency.

ESA has control, after a fashion, over prices and wages. When living costs kept rising, Valentine was bombarded for not acting fast enough in slipping on price and wage controls.

Out he went, although, it's reported, he had just bought a Washington home, which would indicate he had hoped to be around a while.

Eric Johnston has brought in, from his job as movie czar, to take over Valentine's post. So far Johnston has escaped any very harsh criticism, although how long he'll stay undoubtedly will depend on what happens to price and wage controls.

Charles E. Wilson, who resigned as president of the General Electric company to become boss of the whole defense program, already is under pretty fierce attack from organized labor. It accuses him of trying to surround himself with a staff representing big business.

In its fury, much of labor walked out of the defense program. Wilson is said to be a very strong and very blunt man. So far labor doesn't seem to have made much of a dent in him.

This defense program — cutting across prices, wages, materials, shortages, production and the whole economy — affects practically all the pressure groups. It will be strange indeed if Wilson can do his job in such a way that all of them will be content.

So far Michael V. Disalle, former mayor of Toledo who is now in charge of OPA's successor — OPS (office of price stabilization) — has managed to keep a sense of humor and stay fairly free of criticism.

An unpretentious kind of man, he's made a bit hit with congress by his ready wit. But price control is young yet. We'll know more about Disalle's ability to survive when his price control program has been working longer.

Perhaps the one man who'd feel least lifted about losing his big job is Cyrus Ching, former businessman who's been in government service for some years and now is chairman of the wage stabilization board.

Ching's board was shot to pieces when its labor members walked out, leaving behind the three business representatives on the board and the three men, including Ching, representing the public.

If this board is reorganized and Ching's left off, it probably will be all right with him. He took the chairmanship only temporarily, wanting to get back as soon as possible to his regular government job as head of the mediation service.

Senators to Fix Manpower Ceiling

Washington, March 7 —(AP)—Senators faced a decision today on fixing a manpower ceiling for the armed forces and then hoped action out other details of the proposed universal military training and service program.

Many lawmakers expected a limit of 3,500,000 to be put on the combined army, air force, navy and marines. That is what President Truman has fixed as desirable.

Senators unanimously agreed to start voting on these choices at 1:30 p. m. (EST).

Threatening to hold lawmakers in night session for the first time this year, Majority Leader McFarland (D-Ariz.) still hoped to wind up action before quitting.

Other lawmakers said the senate would be fortunate to complete action sometime Thursday.

Once the ceiling issue is decided, leaders expect the next big test to come on a proposal by Senators Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) and Bricker (R-Ohio) to knock from the bill a long-term universal military training program.

It would not become operative until the present international tension cases and the size of forces and length of service of drafted men was cut back sharply.

Johnson and Bricker — with the backing of Republican Policy Leader Taft, of Ohio — contend it would be better to handle the military training program separately when and if the time for it is reached.

Only one decision was reached during the long session yesterday. That was a 77 to 14 vote rejecting an effort by Senator Morse (R-Ore.) to cut back all voluntary enlistments to 36 months.

Morse elaborated the air force and navy for "high-pressure" 18 and 19 year olds to join up for four years and avoid being drafted as foot soldiers.

The air force and navy now take men for a minimum of four years and accept some men for six. The army now has a three-year minimum for volunteers.

Bus Drivers of MOP May Call Strike

St. Louis, March 7 —(AP)— Bus drivers of the Missouri Pacific Bus Lines, which serves ten states, have authorized a strike to back up their wage demands. A date for the walkout will be set tomorrow.

F. A. Purcell, deputy president of the union, a unit of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, announced that 95 per cent of the line's 300 drivers voted in favor of the strike.

The drivers are demanding a wage hike of 18 cents over their present hourly rate of $1.20. In voting the strike, they rejected a company offer of four cents an hour.

The date for the walkout will be decided at a meeting tomorrow of the union's negotiating committee headed by J. H. Duke of Little Rock, Ark.

The company operates in Missouri, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

THE STORY: Tim Reese, a crippled veteran, moved the crippled and blind Midge to his apartment by substituting drawings under the name of "Robert" and having her deliver the drawings to a local dealer from his bedroom. The Arm and Leg Paralysis Society's secretary, Jean (Rhonda), is disappointed when the drawings come containing the name of the dealer, who is addressed to "Timothy Reese, 1000 Broadway, New York." Jean, named Midge from the Greek, "Maid," pointed to the drawings and said, "Tim, you're a scoundrel. The money for the drawings is coming from my husband's business. He would draw no more, Jean, because he's blind. Tim is easily swayed and has been misled by a woman named 'Midge.' Maybe, if I could see you in the name of the things I sketch."

JEAN ROLAND had not expected this. She hesitated. "You mean you mean you'd want me to come out here and model for you?" Tim Reese saw her hesitation. It would be too much trouble. I could have known. Maybe, somehow, I could get into New York—" "Oh, not No!" Jean cut in hastily. "I'll come out here to Cedarbrook. I'll be no trouble, really."

"Sure!"
"Sure."
Tim's eyes were bright again. He had an idea that seeing you take my stuff come to life—to make a wonderful life—might help me believe it wasn't all so much to do about nothing. Just now, when I saw you there in that beige dress, I had a different feeling about dress designing."

He groped for the right words. "I—I guess you could call it the end of feeling a composer has when he hears his music played. Something like that."

"You flatter me." Now, she modeled the young girl graduate. "You're so nice."

"Nice to want to look at you!"

Action Near on Universal Draft Issue

He laughed softly. "You have no idea what you do for the land escape around here. Or, maybe you have."

"I'd just love to come," she said, hiding the lie with her smile.

AFTER Jean had gone, Tim Reese sat for a long time, musing. Lunch hour came and he did not notice it. His eyes looked into a distance far beyond the pleasant valley.

Midge approached quietly, and he was not aware of her. She stood back a moment, watching him. She was very solemn, and she looked very young for such a soldier.

She put the yellow envelope in his lap.

He gave a little start. "Midge was wondering what happened to you." He looked down at the envelope. "I might as well tell you. Midge, the secret is out, and you won't have to worry about me any longer. Teresa is dead."

"Dead?"

He gave her back the yellow envelope and told her what had happened.

"Well, I must say I'm kind

"I can tell that from your face."
"Don't be angry at me, Mildred."
Just because I'm an old man doesn't mean I can't appreciate a beautiful girl."
"She is very beautiful," Mildred said coolly.
He was amused at her coolness.

Montan, a valuable industrial wax, is extracted from lignite low-grade soft coal.

"She looked like she was wealthy to me," Midge would not cooperate. "You should have seen the car she was driving."

"Maybe it belongs to the firm," Tim said. "Though I can't imagine her riding around in anything but a beautiful car."

"You've fallen in love with her Colonel," Midge declared suddenly.

He looked at Midge's solemn face; and a twinkle came into his eyes. "You've changed, Midge. You seem to have grown serious."

Midge was not to be put off. "Did she fall in love with you?"

HE pretended to be astonished at her question, but there was more than a little pleasure in his pretense. "You don't mean you believe a girl could fall in love with a man in a wheel chair?"

"Yes."

He took her hand. "Midge, you're wonderful. I've an idea I'm going to need you."

Midge looked him levelly in the eyes.

ly eyes. "I'm usually around," said.

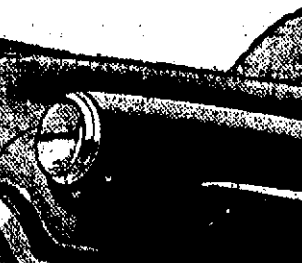

Then, the nurse appeared to take Tim up to the hospital for his lunch.

Midge stood where she had been standing, watching them go. Which the nurse pushed the wheelchair across the sunlit terrace. Her eyes were brooding now. The girl discovered she was still holding the yellow envelope in her hand. Crossly, she sailed the envelope away from her down the slope of the green lawn and turned abruptly toward the driveway. The envelope, circling around like a javelin, came back and fell in the grass behind her. But she did not see it.

New York, March 8 —(AP)— Authorities say Connie Schaff, New York university basketball ace, has admitted accepting a $1,900 bribe to fix a game last New Year's day between NYU and Cornell.

The new charge against Schaff, already under arrest for a purported attempt to bribe a teammate was made by Assistant District Attorney Vincent A. G. O'Connor.

O'Connor said last night that Schaff several days ago told of taking fix money for the NYU-Cornell game and trying to get another player to do likewise.

Schaff is one of 13 players or former players, involved in college basketball's blackest scandal, accused of rigging results of at least 16 games at Madison Square Garden during the past the season.

O'Connor said Schaff admitted he talked with two fixers before the Cornell game at the Garden and agreed to try to line up another NYU player for the fix.

The bribe payers and the other player, who turned down the bribe offer, were not named by O'Connor.

Assuming that Schaff had a partner in the scheme; the promised payoff was $3,000, O'Connor said.

The missing figure also included U. S. military control and 110,980 men who have since returned to U. S. military control and 110 known prisoners of war, leaving 8,724 currently missing.

Government May Get Tough With 'Friends'

By SAM DAWSON
New York, March 7 — (AP)—The U. S. government is planning to get tough with some of its friends who it believes are overcharging on materials needed for the army program.

Prices have gone sky high since Korea on tin, rubber and wool. The U. S. government is planning to get tough with some of its friends who it believes are overcharging on materials needed for the army program.

The price of tin in British Malaya rose 150 per cent. The United States today is stopping its purchases for the defense stockpile, until the price drops to a reasonable level.

Since Korea the price of raw wool in Australia has gone up 75 percent. Now Price Director Michael V. Disalle says a wool formula is being developed to handle the problem of wool imports. He also says parts are in the making with foreign governments on other imports, such as newspaper, copper and coffee.

A halt to government stockpiling Navy losses increased by one to a total of 500. Marine corps casualties were up 110 to a total of 7,338. Total air force casualties reached 418, an increase of 10 over last week.

Deny Licenses Issued to Drunks

Piggott, March 7 — (AP)—Two Arkansas county judges and an Arkansas legislator have denied that marriage licenses are issued or ceremonies performed for intoxicated persons in their counties.

Their statements followed a declaration by St. Louis Circuit Judge James P. McLaughlin that some Missourians "get drunk, drive down to Pocahontas or Piggott, Ark., at 3 a.m. and get married."

Clay County Judge P. A. French denied Judge McLaughlin's charge here. So did Randolph County Judge Guy Amos at Pocahontas. But Judge Amos said he could speak only for the period since Jan. 1, when he assumed office.

A similar denial was issued at Little Rock by Rep. Laud Payne of Clay county.

prices. The tin price here dropped 4 1/2 cents a pound yesterday, even before announcement of the halting of stockpiling. The price drop came from the report of a senate subcommittee over the week-end calling upon the U. S. government to stop stockpiling, and contending that our friends were gouging us.

And today the stockpile ban sent tin skidding down to $1.67 a pound in New York.

Before Korea tin was selling at around 76 cents a pound. It rose to $1.83 a pound by Jan. 26, a date of the general price freeze order.
